BENEATH THE SURFACE OF THE NOTE

THE tenor of the latest American note to Germany regarding the submarine warfare practiced by the imperial government means that Berlin must make reparation for the destruction of the Lusitania. Just what steps the United States will take to force the kaiser to require so far as lies in his power for the inhumanities he has practiced is not shown in the document. Furthermore, the note in its declaration that repetition of this offense will be deemed unfriendly, does not go into details as to the nature of the enmities to be engendered. Of course it is needless to state in exact language the action that will follow either refusal to make reparation or repetition of the offense. It can mean nothing save the termination of diplomatic relationship which is in itself a declaration of war.

Owing to the dispassion and diplomatic language of the message it is rather difficult in places to construe so that its full force is apparent. It is almost necessary to use a book of synonyms and rewrite the document. For instance, "disappointed" evidently means "angry." "Illegality" may be construed as "criminality"; "retaliation in defense" may easily be deemed "activity in offense." Thus it goes all down through the document and when the pleantries of diplomatic phraseology are elided, the note stands forth as an ultimatum.

While the foregoing was being typed there came an Associated Press wire to the Bonanza telling of the submarining of an American ship engaged in the transportation of flax. The only mitigating feature is that the members of the crew managed to escape. Flax is rather an unusual article of contraband. It is used in the arts of peace and not, like cotton, in the manufacture of high explosives. Perhaps, however, there is fear of some wholesale neektie parties in which the higher-ups will be central figures at the conclusion of the war, and as flax may answer the purpose of hemp, it has been condemned as contraband. At all events it should not take Washington long to discover that this latest act in violation of the laws of international warfare is "deliberately unfriendly."

TAKE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST HYDROPHOBIA

WHILE the dog poisoner is rated as one of the most depraved types of humanity, there is something frequently praiseworthy in the individual who arises in his wrath and his pajamas and empties both barrels of his shotgun in the direction of the howling cur. Whether or not he is deemed praiseworthy depends upon the accuracy of his aim.

Your own dog, your friend's dog and the other people's dogs form the three classes of canines in Tonopah and the last named are vastly in the majority. If any of them wear tags to indicate that they are aiding in the support of the government, they are not noticeable. There is a very urgent reason why all dogs should be tagged at the present time and those that are not given this badge of ownership executed by painless but speedy process. Rabies has become prevalent through northern Washoe, Humboldt and Elko counties and the dread disease is rapidly spreading until there is every assurance that even southern Nevada will not be spared.

Hydrophobia was hitherto unknown in this state, but a criminally foolish experimentalist in Lake county, Oregon, evolved the idea of inoculating a captured coyote with rabies and turning it loose to bite other coyotes in that they might all go mad and die. They got mad all right, but unfortunately did not immediately die, but spread the terrible disease in all directions, inoculating sheep and cattle dogs on the ranges and the latter passed it on to the town curs.

Considering the fact that Tonopah contains hundreds of homeless canines, jackals of the city dump, if hydrophobia should gain a foothold here there would probably be loss of life by one of the most horrible of all diseases, for unless pasteurization is speedily performed, the human victim of a rabid dog is due to suffer terrible torment and often death. It is the duty of officials to force dog owners to pay license for their canines or kill them, and then make a cleanup of the unowned dogs. A tagged dog is not dangerous. He is too well cared for to become exposed to rabies, at least the danger is very remote.

A WATER SURVEY NEEDED

(From the Reno Gazette.)

THE Tonopah Bonanza very aptly says: "Agriculture, which is now in its infancy in Nevada, owing to the fact that dependence has hitherto been placed solely upon surface flows, will develop on a tremendous scale through the utilization of the waters which now hide themselves in subterranean reservoirs or steal away through hidden channels."

Everyone whose business has taken him far and wide over the state will agree that subterranean waters are a notable feature of Nevada and the great wheat crop of the state this year is only one evidence of what these waters might accomplish if put upon the soil in what are called the "arid" districts. What we need is expert advice as to where this water is to be found. We need hydrologists. Fortunately the United States has the most experienced men in hydrology that are to be found anywhere, and Nevada undoubtedly can procure their services.

The present state law for co-operation of the university and farm owners in water-supply matters is not broad enough to be of much use to the state at large, though its benefits are not to be ignored. What is needed is a complete survey of the underground water resources of Nevada.

MAIDS WEAR PINK CORSETS

The Suggestion of the Flesh Tint Particularly Liked For Evening Wear Under Habillements Which Affect This Color.

Now that the "dainty" season has come many girls are buying corsets of a pale pink color whose hue matches the delicate tints of the chiffon combination or the crepe de chine ensemble. It is a happy idea to have pink corsets to wear with one's evening frocks, as the suggestion of the flesh tint, which is found in nearly all evening habiliments, is thereby intensified.

However, the practical woman will stick to the all white stays. It is astonishing the variety of models that are being offered, and even more so is the low price at which good corsets are now sold. In Paris the woman of average means thinks nothing of paying seven or eight dollars a pair for the important foundation garment, realizing that the success of her gown or tailleur very greatly depends on the sort of corset over which it is molded.

The Frenchwoman prefers to economize on her outer apparel rather than on the corset, but here in America it is not necessary to pay an exorbitantly high price for the latter. The domestic manufacturer has reduced corset making to something of a science. He has been at considerable pains to study the various types of figures possessed by the women who are his patrons. He has solved the important matter of fabric, weight, durability and cost, and he has evolved excellent models with a minimum of boning and very shapely and comfortable at that.

For the girl who likes a bit of color it is rather a pretty idea to have the corset lacings of pale blue or pale pink to match the ribbons of her lingerie. Silk lacings are to be recommended always, because, while their cost is greater in the beginning, they wear better, are softer against the vertebrae and therefore more hygienic.
